Turin, November 19. N. S.

THE great Rains which are fallen here had render'd the Roads impracticable; ſo that the greateſt Part of our Troops that were on their March from Pignerol and Suza into Lombardy, were forced to halt for ſome Days; but the Waters being fallen, they now continue their March to their reſpective Quarters. His Royal Highneſs having thought fit to reform the Regiment commanded by Monſieur Meyrolle, which was raiſed at the Beginning of the War, has incorporated the Soldiers into the Regiment of Deporte, which is of the ſame Nation, and an elder Corps. His Royal Highneſs has been obliged to this Expedient from the Difficulty of filling up both Regiments with French Recruits. There will be a Reform likewiſe in the Regiment of Monſieur Cavalier, which, according to the firſt Agreement, was to have conſiſted of French Proteſtants; but the Colonel having been employed in other Parts, his inferior Officers have not been able to compleat it. On the firſt Inſtant Prince Eugene left this Place, and went by Water to Pavia, where his Equipages were ordered to wait for him, in his Journey to Milan. His Highneſs hath taken with him Prince Maurice, one of his Nephews, ſecond Son to the late Count de Soiſſons, in order to procure him a ſuitable Poſt in the Service of his Imperial Majeſty. The other two Sons of the Count de Soiſſons continue in the Court of his Royal Highneſs, who has promiſed to take Care of them. It is ſaid, that Prince Emanuel, the eldeſt of them, is deſigned for the firſt Imperial Regiment of Horſe which ſhall become vacant. This young Prince hath already had the Honour to make three Campaigns with his Royal Highneſs, and was dangerouſly wounded in the Action of Saluſſes. On the 3d the Regiment of Piedmont was embarked on the Po, in order to be tranſported to Valence, where his Royal Highneſs hath appointed them to be in Gariſon all the Winter. The ſame Day the Regiment of Savoy, conſiſting of two Battalions, arrived here from the Val d'Aoſt, on their Way to Suza, where his Royal Highneſs deſigns to quarter a Body of 10 Battalions, beſides the 5 German Regiments which Prince Eugene hath left in thoſe Parts. It is ſaid, the Enemy deſign to be very ſtrong on that Frontier, and that they have ordered ſome Lines to be made in Savoy, in hopes to hinder the Allies from entering Dauphiné the next Campaign, of which they ſeem to be very apprehenſive. On the 9th the Baron Rhebinder, Commander of the Palatine Troops in the Pay of the Queen of Great Britain and the States General, ſet out for Genoa, after a Stay of 5 Weeks here. On the 11th the Regiment de Porte, which was relieved by that of St. Jule, marched from hence for Alexandria, where it is to be in Gariſon this Winter, with the Regiment of Maſſey, under the Command of the Marquis d'Andoure, Major-General, whom his Royal Highneſs hath been pleaſed to appoint Commander in the Montferrat, Alexandrine, and the neighbouring Parts. This Officer deſigns to go from hence within a Day or two, to take upon him that Command, and is to keep his chief Reſidence at Alexandria; the Marquis de Courtance, who commands there at preſent, being ordered to march with his Regiment to Suza. The Enemy having impoſed upon the Officer Prince Eugene had appointed to regulate the intended Neutrality to the Houſe upon the Top of great Mount Cenis, ſo as to include all the Ways on the adjacent Hills, his Royal Highneſs hath ſent Orders to the Count de la Rocque, Governor of Suza, to diſown what that Officer had agreed upon, and declare to the Enemy, That his Royal Highneſs only intended the Neutrality of the aforeſaid Houſe; and that if they did not approve that, to leave Things on the ſame foot they are at preſent. The Princeſſes of Carignan and Soiſſons have been to wait on his Royal Highneſs and the Dutcheſs Conſort at the Venerie, where the Court deſigns to ſtay as long as the Weather continues fair. The Count of St. Agnes, whom the Prince of Carignan had ſent to Neufchatel to take Care of his Intereſts, in regard to their late Election of a new Sovereign, is arrived here, and has had the Honour to give his Royal Highneſs, as well as the Prince of Carignan, an Account of his Negociations. Advices from Milan ſay, That Prince Eugene hath augmented the Regiment of General Raventlau to the Number of 1200 Men, and that his Highneſs had ordered them to begin their March on the 15th Inſtant for Final, where they may arrive on the 25th, in order to be embarked for Spain. Letters from Genoa of the 10th Inſtant adviſe, that 4 Britiſh Ships came in there that Evening from cruiſing, and brought in along with them two ſmall French Sattees, laden with Corn from Cap-Nero. There are now 8 Britiſh and two Dutch Ships in that Port. The ſame Letters add, That a Genoeſe Ship arrived there from Barcelona reported, That a Britiſh Veſſel from Gibraltar had informed them, a Squadron of Men of War, with two Flags, departed thence 4 Days before them; and heard alſo at Barcelona, That a Squadron of Britiſh Ships were arrived at Altea.

Francfort, Decemb. 1. General Thungen, who quarters at Bruchſal, to be in readineſs at any Alarm, has ordered the Magazine at Philipſbourg to be furniſhed with Proviſions, and is making new Magazines at Etlingen and Muhlberg. Count Wratiſlau is gone from Duſſeldorp to Hanover, from whence, after a Conference with his Electoral Highneſs, he is to proceed to Dreſden, in order to treat with King Auguſtus for the 6000 Men which that Prince has offered to his Imperial Majeſty. Letters from Swiſſerland adviſe, That the two little Towns of Landeron and Creſſier, who refuſed to ſubmit to the Determination of the States of Neufchatel, and acknowledge the King of Pruſſia for their Sovereign, have at laſt taken the Oaths of Fidelity to him before Count Metternich. 'Tis ſaid the French King has ordered ſome Forces to march into Franche Comté, and join the Troops that are already in thoſe Parts.

Hague, December 6. N. S. The King of Pruſſia and the Prince Royal his Son have notified to this Republick the Birth of the young Prince, and at the ſame time deſired the States to be his Godfathers, in Conjunction with ſeveral other Princes and States. Monſieur Ducker, Envoy Extraordinary from the Biſhop of Munſter, is upon his Departure for the Court of the Prince his Maſter, having had his Audience of Leave from their High Mightineſſes, with the uſual Ceremonies. On the 20th paſt the Prince d'Auvergne was married to the Princeſs of Aremberg at Berg-op-zoon. Monſieur de Cronſtrom is arrived at Bruſſels, in order to aſſiſt at the Conferences which are to be held at Nivelles, concerning the Exchange of the Priſoners which were made at Hochſtet, Ramillies, and Almanza. We hear from Saxony, That Count Wratiſlau was arrived at Leiplick, from whence he intended, after a ſhort Stay at Dreſden, to purſue his Journey to the Imperial Court. Thoſe Letters add, That the Swediſh Army was advanced towards Thorn; and that it was believed the greateſt Part of them would Winter in the Poliſh Pruſſia. His Swediſh Majeſty was expected at Dantzick with King Staniſlaus. The Czar was gone from Miſck, and upon his
